Shipwreck Ahead

WHATEVER ONE MAY THINK W about the capacity of the man who wrote it, the budget speech of the Canadian government leaves no doubt about the basic fact of our situation. If we go on as we are going now, says Mr. Gordon, "we hall end up on the rocks,"

The six-year accumulation deficit and disorder, which is the Diefenbaker government's legacy to the nation, must be mastered somehow or, as Mr. Gordon says, the nation will suffer shipwreck sooner or later. So far that problem has not been mastered, for the revision of the construction tax, while unquestionably wise, leaves the national budget just about where it stood when a new government opened the cupboard and found it

This tax was expected to yield $155 millions during the present year but it will yield only $45 mil-lions in its revised state, according to The Canadian Press. Last year's total deficit of $752 millions will be reduced by only about $72 millions which really means nothing in a budget of $7.6 billions.

Next year, lacking new revenues, the situation will be worse. The deficit then would reach a round bil-lion, Mr. Gordon calculates, since the government must finance its new tax incentives for business, must somehow restore the bankrupt unemployment insurance fund, provide overdue pay increases for the civil service and meet other increased expenditures.

When the construction tax rate is doubled next spring and rises to 11 per cent at the end of 1964 the government will secure some extra revenue but it will not be enough to bring a balanced budget even within distant sight. All Mr. Gordon has tried to do so far is to reduce the rate of deficit modestly. He cannot even do that unless he enforces new taxes or revises his spending plans downward, or both.

He is right in saying that the Canadian people do not seem to grasp the dimensions of their prob-lem, mainly because it was carefully em, mainly because it was carefully disguised by the former government which dared not face it and steadily worsened it.

Coming to grips with this problem, the government, Mr. Gordon says, had several options, all of them painful. It could have secured from the personal income tax the $300 to $400 millions of extra revenue which it had considered essential, starting next year. But what would that have meant? It would have meant an increase in income taxes of 25 per cent across the board. Let the reader ask himself whether he would have favored such a remedy. The government rejected it in the belief that income taxes already are too high.

Or the money could have been raised by an increase in the corporation tax, now standing at 52 per cent of profits. Even if this tax were increased by 5 per cent only half the necessary revenues would have been secured and at such rates all business expansion, the source of employment, would have been seriously discouraged. Actually when Canadian business must meet increasing competition in the world and domestic markets the corporation tax is too high now.

Or new revenues could have been obtained by a general increase in all existing sales taxes—that is to say on virtually everything the Canadian family buys except food and build-ing materials. Such an increase would have raised everybody's cost of living when it is rising already and lately has reached an all-time peak without any push from the tax

A fourth alternative was to place heavy taxes on a few luxuries but that plan was rejected as impractical because, in Mr. Gordon's opinsale of the fuxuries would fall, and the tax collection with it, as the price rose. One suspects, however, that he form the form ion, it would be self-defeating. that before these problems are solved the government will be compelled to reconsider luxury taxes and any other revenues it can lay hands on.

Another alternative remains and it has been neglected by all our gov-ernments for the last decade and more—the accelerating rate of expenditure can be curbed. Certainly in a growing population total expenditures must increase year by year but they need not rise at their present rate which, at the three levels of government, far exceeds the rate economic growth.

In short, the crisis identified by In short, the crisis identified by mary fact identified by the Report—the inmary fact identified by the Report—the inability of the poorer provinces to collect the temporary revision of the construction tax, cannot be solved with- still remains. The Rowell-Sirois conclusion in visible, time unless all our gov- that the poorer provinces must be assisted ernments, federal provincial and by money from the richer is still inescapmunicipal (which collect from the able. And the changing makeshifts that same pocket) revise their entire concept of the nation's means,

The problem boils down to the very simple fact that our demand for state services far exceeds our mentary objectives: The federal governexisting means, and certainly our willingness to pay higher taxes. At and jurisdiction to manage a modern state some point the nation must come to its senses. Must it wait until it by the builders of Confederation. The prois "on the rocks"?

Changing the Ground Rules

TWO YEARS AGO, PREMIER Bennett was trying to convince British Columbians that power could be produced from the Peace River as cheaply as from the Co lumbia. The government-appointed B.C. Energy Board, under chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum, since named by the government to the presidency of the prospective Simon Fraser University, brought in a report supporting the premier's

To make the comparison not unfavorable to the Peace, the board had to exclude from its calculations some elements which would have kept the Columbia unit price down. Among them was the $64 million proposed payment by the United States for downstream flood bene-fits from Canadian water storage.

The board has been advised, the 1961 report stated, "that it is the policy of the provincial government to put this flood control payment in a trust fund, the earnings only to be used each year to compensate British Columbia for the loss to the provincial economy of the flooded areas. The board has therefore assessed the cost of power from the Columbia project with no allowance for flood control pay-

Thus was eliminated one of the cost factors which opposition leader Robert Strachan, basing his calculations on the Merz and McLellan survey, estimated would have made the Peace project has already advanced to the point of no return. In other words the province cannot afford to shelve the Peace.

This seems to justify complete-Mr. Strachan's belief that British Columbia has been saddled indefinitely with power costs above those that were possible. This, it seems, is part of the price of Mr. Bennett's two-river policy.

Mr. Strachan has performed a service in revealing what appears to be a cynical disregard for consistency in the government's presentation of relative Peace and Columbia unit costs to the consumer. But is this surprising? Has there been any indication yet that homeowners in this province are to receive in light rate cuts even the full benefits which the province enjoys by avoiding, on its publiclyowned Hydro, the federal taxes formerly paid by the privately operated B.C. Electric?

Much Too Simple

A small figures of two men looking at a huge missile poised on its launching pad. The line underneath reads: "That would have built 10 libraries."

The cost of the arms race is thus portrayed in graphic form a child could understand.

The inference to be drawn from the cartoon is too simple to be practical. But in addition to telling its own direct message, it suggests at least two other points.

If money spent on arms were to poured in such volume into libraries and other educational forces, might it not buy the educa-tions that could furnish a better understanding of humanity in a way by IJC engineers? Or a much greater amount than IJC engineers estimated could to make the missile expenditures unnecessary? And would not the The Socialist 'Answer' financing of such constructive forces as libraries provide the work and payrolls that now have established almost immovable vested interests in the arms industry?

But the story of the picture is too obvious, like the remembered remark of old Maxim Litvinov, who once said that the way to disarm once said society can assure steady economic growth and full employment is too large a subject to be discussed here but one thing is cer-tain—a federal system like that of Canada cannot even begin to make the attempt unless its several governments work together as they are not working now. If the provinces must have enough money for their basic needs (though obviously not all they want by any means) the federal government must have not only sufficient revenues but sufficient economic power to nourish prosperity, insofar as ernment can nourish it.

To be sure, the federal government already has far-reaching powers outside the field of taxation or, as the experts call it, fiscal policy. Among other things, it plutely controls the volume of money. or monetary policy, and some amateur omists suppose that this mighty engine of inflation can cure all our ills if it were fully used.

Source of Trouble

But we should have learned in the last year that when fiscal policy goes wrong everything goes wrong. The foreign ex-change crisis of 1962 was the direct result of fiscal mismanagement, federal and provincial, of perpetual deficits in Ottawa nd ever-increasing debt.

It follows that the federal government:

if it is to avoid further crises of this sort, must have more revenue which can be secured either from higher tax rates or from the yield of general economic growth or both. Yet at the moment when this need is most urgent the provincial governments demand more money from the federal treasury, or a larger share of the basic revenue fields, which amounts to the same thing in the federal budget. If the federal government gives the — There can be no solution but only worse provinces more money or withdraws disorder—financial, economic, political and Old Order Changeth further from its revenue fields in their favor its budgetary problem will be worsened unless it increases its taxes dras-tically at the cost of repressing economic

Obstetric Anesthesia

rhose mumons of women who are in their child-bearing years should doubtless be interested in a fine article by Dra. D. M. Shirline H. M. Epstein and E. Seymour Burge, all of Northwestern University Medical School in Chicago. Through the years, there have been so many changes from one type of obstetrical anesthesia to another, it is interesting now to see what method has been used of late in the big Evanston. Illinois, hospital. From 1957 to 1960, over

From 1957 to 1960, over 2,600 so-called single injection caudal (near-the "tailbone") anesthetics were given. These represented 32 per cent of all the obstetric anesthetics given during that period. In 1960, a little more than half of the patients were having deliveries with this single-injection technique and it was becoming the favorite wather of the creative of the ethod of the anesthetists and obstetricians

After a woman has been given the caudal injection, she quickly loses the ability to feel pain in the muscles that are being dilated by the child; the anesthesia then lasts for 90 minutes. This means that the woman "experiences a painless termination to labor and

A big advantage of this technique is that because of the good relaxation of the peri-neum, the head of the infant is not subject so much pressure and molding as is the ease when the mother is not helped with a local anesthetic During the four years when the study was made, 2,959 "spinal anesthetics" were the Evanston Hospital; in the last nine ears, the "low spinal block anesthesia" has declined in popularity for several reasons.

Also, during the four-year period, general esthesia-in which the woman is unconscious was used in from 22 to 27 per cent of the cases. In some 2 per cent of the cases, no anesthetic was given, either because the woman elected to have a "natural child-birth," or because she had her baby so fast there was this disease, from time to time, perhaps after eating or talking, have a brief paroxysm of excruciating pain, usually on only one side of the face.

It appears to be due to a malfunctioning of the ganglion (nodule of nerve tissue) from which the three parts of the fifth nerve run out to supply the face with sensation.

Usually, the disease attacks women who are over 50, but sometimes it attacks younger people, and it can attack a man. Usually, the first thing that is done by a neurosurgeon is to inject some alcohol into the ganglion. This is likely to give relief, but it may be for only ix months or so.

If an operation is needed, there are two or three types which can be done. They generally give complete relief from the terrible pain, but they are difficult operations, and hence, must be performed by an expert nerve

The original operation was bad in that it t one side of the face numb, and also left the front of one eye numb. Sometimes this "numb" eye was injured by dust or sand that got in between the lids. With the new opera-tion, there isn't so much danger of injury to

Some years ago, a drug was found which some felt was the answer to the problem of curing this disease. It has a tendency to in-fure the function of the facial nerve, and thereby to cause relief of the pain in it. Often it does relieve the pain, but I have here a letter from Dr. John B. Erich of the Mayo Clinic, who specializes in this field, and he says that they have discontinued the use of the drug at the clinic. In their experience, the distresses which are left in the face are often regarded by the patient as worse and orten regarded by the patient as worse and more annoying than the original pain.

Dr. Erich says he has seen several patients who, after taking the drug, got these paresthesias (abnormal sensations) on both sides of the face, and are now complaining more about these feelings than they used to do about their pain. Dr. Erich went on to say that some doctors are still enhusiastic about the use of the drug, but at the Mayo Clinic the news. the drug, but at the Mayo Clinic the neuro logists have not been impressed with its use-

They See the Sea as Dad Does

It doesn't happen often, but whenever the RCN can work it into the exercise schedule of Pacific Command ships, families of sailors are invited aboard to see what happens at sea, Recently four destroyers of the Second Canadian Escort Squadron deployed in Juan de Fuca Strait and carried out manoeuvres—including close order transfer of supplies by jackstay—while mothers, sons and daughters got an inkling of how dad earns his living. From left, shops are HMCS Margaree, Skeena, Sague-nay and Fraser. It has been suggested the navy extend such invitations to include civilians not linked with ships' companies.

'MAN-TO-MAN' TALK FACES HITCH-HIKER

A Victoria man whose 13-year-old son hitch-hiked to ronto and is being held by police there, will go east to pick up the boy.

Mrs. R. H. Lowe, 812 Condor, said today her husband will bring the youngster home. Earlier, Mr. Lowe said his son could make his own way back, because he didn't have plane fare "kicking around the house."

The boy arrived in Toronto Saturday. He left Victoria July 6 with a companion, James Grant Laurie, 16, who is being sent home today.

Between them, the two boys had $5. They made their way to Toronto's Downsview RCAF station, where Laurie's sister is stationed.

She turned them over to police.

Mrs. Lowe said this morning she had no idea why her son had left home, but that he might have wanted "a sort

The pair, who abducted and released unharmed three hos-tages during their escape, were unarmed and surrendered without a struggle.

Kaiser and McKenny scaled a 12-foot fence at Brandon's provincial jail Thursday night. After the escape, the pair took rifles and ammunition from the vacant apartment of the jail superintendent who was away on vacation.

Then they entered a Brandon home and took Mrs. Lena Solo-mon, 35, and her eight-year-old son, Darryl, captive and fled in the Solomon car. Later the mother and son were released 35 miles east of Brandon and a 15-year-old boy, Leo Balcuinas of Firdale, Man., was taken hostage.

trick with the ace of clubs and returns the guit. You win the trick and are now ready to apply the code word, "Arch." You do not worry about "A" (Ana-lyze the lead) and "R" (Review the bidding) but you do count your winners and get to eight easily, since you have two hearts, four diamonds and two clubs.

Now you try "H" and ask yourself, "How can I make a ninth trick?" You have two places to try. If holds both the ace and queen of spades or if you can guess which of the two high spades he holds you can make your ninth trick in that suit. How about the hearts? You don't know, but you can cash dummy's ace and king of hearts and see what happens. You do this and eloud on the horizon.

With only eight hours to go before the deadline, President Kennedy persuaded the rall-roads to defer putting work rules in force and the unions to refrain from walking out. Tension was heavy Wednes-day as the hours ticked away rd the deadline. The unions had turned down the president's proposal that the dispute be submitted to binding arbitration by Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg. Shippers were figuring how they could route their goods without freight cars.

Shortly after 4 p.m. Wednes-day the railroads and the unions agreed to a Kennedy proposal for a delay until July 29.

The president appointed a sixman labor - management panel, headed by Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, to review the railroad jobs dispute. It will submit its recommendations to Congress July 22.

If Congress acts - perhaps to require arbitration—before the July 29 deadline there will be no strike.

But indications were that there were slim chances of clear sailing in Congress.

On another sector of the la-bor - management front, a contract designed to set a pattern for the 750,000 Bell Telephone system employees in the United States and Canada was reached by the Michigan Bell Telephone Workers of America.

VANCOUVER (CP)-The Truck Loggers' Association has told the federal government its new sales tax policy is tantamount to handing the big B.C. logging industry over to a few large corporations.

In a letter to Prime Minister Pearson and members of his cabinet, released Saturday, the association said the large forest corporations will be able to offset the sales tax on materials and machinery, but the independent loggers will not.

that it is a hardship on B.C. operators and that it should not apply anyway.

The association said smaller operators buy their timber at government auctions at a set price or work under contract to the large operators. It was a low-profit, high-cost opera-tion and the tax changes, the letter said, would eat up a quarter of the 15 per cent margin of profit permitted under ovincial government sales.

The taxes should not apply, the letter said, to loggers

They See the Sea as Dad Does

It doesn't happen often, but whenever the RCN can work it into the exercise schedule of Pacific Command ships, families of sailors are invited aboard to see what happens at sea. Recently four destroyers of the Second Canadian Escort Squadron deployed in Juan de Fuca Strait and carried out manoeuvresincluding close order transfer of supplies by jackstay—while mothers, sons and daughters got an inkling of how dad earns his living. From left, shops are HMCS Margaree, Skeena, Sague-nay and Fraser. It has been suggested the navy extend such invitations to include civilians not linked with ships' companies.
